14. The first effect of the new work day has been the reduction in the number of employees who leave before the probationary period. The reduction could be attributed to the fact that the average length of the new work schedule is 35 hours per week as compared to 40 hours per week for the old schedule. This reduction in the number of employees who leave before the probationary period is due to the fact that the new schedule is more flexible and allows employees to work fewer hours if they wish. This is a significant improvement over the old schedule, which required employees to work 40 hours per week regardless of their needs. The new schedule is a more flexible and humane way of organizing work, and it is a significant improvement over the old schedule.
